 - SWARM training to SWARM is initiated as soon as possible after an adverse incident or undesirable event occurs. Like bees, staff swarm to the site to determine the cause of the event and how it can be corrected. After the event is identified, staff complete the following steps:
 - Frontline staff complete an incident report.
 - The department administrator, risk management manager, and Office of Enterprise Quality and Safety evaluate the incident report and instruct the relevant participants to SWARM as close in time and physical proximity to the event as possible.

- Relevant staff SWARM in a blame-free environment to quickly analyze what happened, why it happened, and decide what needs to be done to prevent it from happening in the future.
 - An effective SWARM includes the following five steps:
 1. encouraging candor by reassuring participants that they are in a blame-free environment with legal protections
 2. introducing all participants to create a common familiarity respect
 3. reviewing the facts that prompted the SWARM
 4. Discussing what happened and theorizing about why and how It happened
 5. Proposing focus areas for action and assigning task leaders with specific deliverables and completion dates
